

As an XM subscriber (x2) and an over the road truckdriver I use my XM extensively for both traffic and weather updates. I can find out what's going on at my destination and in the cities I pass through on the way. I can also go to the weather channel to find out what's happening in between. Local stations cannot give me this information until I'm within range of their station. How does one go around a storm if he can't find out about it until he's in it? Or a traffic jam?

Local stations cannot compete with this service. Tell them to quit whinning and just keep doing what they do. They're making a living and so is XM.

And as a plus for me as an XM subscriber I can listen to the kind of music I enjoy all of the time. Instead of just when I happen to find it on AM or FM which by the way is not very often.

Thank you.

Regards.

Roy Fogg